Explanation:(1) Income Tax Rate

The income tax rate used in the notes to financial statement no.28 is lower than the average income tax rate of each country in which the Company has invested. This is due to a portion of the income being exempted from income taxes. For example, in Thailand, the Company has been granted privileges of investment promotion per the Investment Promotion Act BE 2520 (AD 1977) in various types of businesses. This comprises animal feed production business, animal husbandry business, animal breeding business, food processing and ready-to-eat meal production business. By doing so, the Company is exempted from corporate income tax for the net profit received according to the period and conditions specified in each investment promotional certificate. The Company receives 50% reduction in corporate income tax for the net profit derived from the promoted business for a period of 5 years after the expiration of tax exemption period.

Furthermore, the share of profits from investment in associates and joint ventures which the Company has recognized as income under the equity method and included in the profit (loss) before tax expenses in the consolidated financial statement is also considered as income.

(2) Tax effect of income and expenses that are not considered as income or tax expenses such as

- Entertainment and donation expenses in excess of the amount allowed to be deducted by the tax law
- Certain types of expenses which can be deducted as tax expenses more than one hundred percent, such as donation expense, training expense, research & development expense and wage of high-skilled employee expense.
- Profit (loss) from the exchange rate used in the calculation of income tax but not included in accounting profit (loss)
- Dividend income of the listed companies on the stock exchange obtained from limited companies established under Thai laws

(3) Changes in temporary differences such as

- Gain (loss) from changes in the fair value of biological assets
- Differences in the calculation of depreciation and amortization of accounting and tax methods

(4) Tax loss

In 2024 and 2025, some companies report losses, which was acknowledged for tax income revenue and recorded income tax asset.
